CHURCHILL TO REST

Reported Flying To France

THE following statement was issued from 10 Downing street last night:—

"For some time the Prime Minister has planned to have a short rest. This had to be postponed because of the general election, but Mr. Churchill will shortly be going abroad.

"In order that his rest may be as complete as possible, the Prime Minister's whereabouts are not being made public. He will, of course, be kept in constant touch by courier and telegram and thus able to deal with all essental and urgent matters.

Paris Radio said that Mr. Churchill was due to arrive at Bordeaux last night by air and would go on from there by car to Hendaye, on the Franco-Spanish frontier.

Engineers and technicians are installing telephone connections and a radio transmitter at the Chateau de Bordaverry, near Hendaye, where the Prime Minister will stay, the radio said.

"BIG THREE"

The Press Association Lobby Correspondent states:—

Mr. Churchill, who will be accompanied by Mrs. Churchill, will take with him a small staff to handle any imperative business, but no official visitors of any sort—or from any country—will be with him while he is resting.

Mr. Churchill will go on from his undisclosed holiday centre to the "Big Three" meeting without returning home first, but it is fully expected that he will be back in England in time for the declaration of the General Election results on July 26th.

A Reuter message from Madrid says that well-informed quarters there deny reports that Mr. Churchill will meet General Franco during his vacation.

President Truman stated in Washington last night that there would be no separate meeting with Mr. Churchill before the "Big Three" meeting. He added that the meeting between Stalin, Churchill and himself would be held "some time within the next three weeks."

300 Planes Over Japan

Nine Super-Fortresses and 100 Mustangs yesterday raided airfields east and north of Tokyo and another nine miles from Osaka, according to Tokyo. Attacks on Nagasaki and other areas of Kyushu were made later by 200 Liberators, Mitchells and Lightnings.

U.S. Navy privateers attacked the land mass of Korea for the first time in the war on Wednesday, striking rail communications, power houses and other installations, Admiral Chester Nimitz announced in his communiqué this morning.

The creation of a new, all-embracing U.S. Army Strategic Air Force in the Pacific, under General Carl Spaatz, who was Commander of the Strategic Air Forces in Europe, was announced yesterday in Washington by Mr. Patterson, Under-Secretary for War.

Mr. Patterson added that at least 40 secondary Japanese cities will be primary targets from now on.

Three Candidates For Premiership

Three men were named yesterday in Sydney as likely candidates to succeed the late Mr. John Curtin as Prime Minister of Australia, says Reuter. They are:—Mr. F. M. Forde, Acting Prime Minister and Army Minister; Mr. J. B. Chifley, Commonwealth Treasurer, and Dr. Herbert Evatt, Minister for External Affairs, who led the Australian delegation at San Francisco.

A message expressing the sympathy of the Irish Government on the death of Prime Minister Curtin was sent to the Australian Government yesterday by the Taoiseach. The Irish Labour Party also sent a cable.

Britain and America Recognise the New Polish Government

[Reuter and Press Association.]

THE British and American Governments, it was announced last night in London and Washington, have recognised the recently-formed Polish Provisional Government of National Unity, and have established diplomatic relations.

The British Foreign Office made the following announcement:—

"His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom have received from the Prime Minister of the recently-formed Polish Provisional Government of National Unity in Warsaw a formal notification to the effect that the Government was established on June 28th and that it has recognised in their entirety the decisions of the Crimea Conference on the Polish question. The message requested the establishment of diplomatic relations with His Majesty's Government and the exchange of representatives with the rank of ambassador.

"His Majesty's Government welcome the establishment of the Polish Provisional Government of National Unity as an important step towards the fulfilment of the decisions regarding Poland embodied in the declaration on Poland issued by the Crimea Conference. If full agreement with the United States Government, they have conveyed to M. Osobka Morawski their recognition of the Polish Provisional Government of National Unity and have informed him of their readiness to establish diplomatic relations with it.

"In doing so they have recalled that the Crimea decisions on Poland include a provision that the Polish Provisional Government of National Unity shall be pledged to the holding of free and unfettered elections as soon as possible on the basis of universal suffrage and secret ballot in which all democratic and anti-Nazi parties shall have the right to take part and put forward candidates.

"The appointment of a British Ambassador to Warsaw will, it is expected, be announced shortly. Pending his appointment it is proposed to send to Warsaw as soon as possible the Hon. Robert A. Hankey as Chargé d'Affaires ad interim."

Mr. Robert Hankey, who is 40, is the eldest son of Lord Hankey. He was First Secretary of the British Legation in Warsaw when the war began, and had to dodge bombs and machine-gun fire during his escape from Poland. Next he went to Bucharest, and was there during the street-fighting in the Iron Guard troubles. He speaks eight languages.

The United States Government has appointed Mr. Arthur Bliss Lane as Ambassador to Poland, and he will go to Warsaw as soon as possible.

The Press Association Diplomatic Correspondent writes:—

France and Sweden have already recognised the new Warsaw Government, and it is expected that other Governments of the United Nations will now follow suit. Recognition is thus automatically withdrawn from the Arciszewski Government in London, whose predecessor sought sanctuary when Poland was invaded, first in Paris and then, when France, too, fell on June 20th, 1940, in London.

The Arciszewski Government ends two years and one day after the tragic death of their Prime Minister and Commander-in-Chief, General Sikorski, killed in a plane crash at Gibraltar on July 4th, 1943.

Almost from that day its dissensions and difficulties steadily increased, until the Polish problem became an almost chronic political question, constantly before the Allied nations, to whose unity in war it was a constant threat and to whose enemies it was a potent propaganda weapon.

A Polish spokesman in London last night said that members of the Arciszewski Ministry now become private citizens. Financial credits given by Britain to that Government to maintain its large civil service and administration will now end.

Twenty million pounds worth of gold, brought out of Poland when the country was overrun, and ultimately brought to London, may revert to the Warsaw Government. It is at present in the hands of the Bank Polskie, London.

President Truman said last night in Washington:—"The establishment of the new Polish Government is an important and positive step in fulfilling the decisions regarding Poland reached at Yalta. The new Government has confirmed its intention to carry out the provisions of the Crimea Conference with regard to the holding of elections."

It was announced early this morning that the Chinese and Norwegian Governments had recognised the new Warsaw Government.

Victuallers' Answer to Meat Strike

Over forty shops manned by Master Victuallers will be open in Dublin from to-day for the sale of meat. Two shops also will be open in Bray, two in Dun Laoghaire, and one in Blackrock.

An official of the Workers' Union stated yesterday that the shops will be picketed.

The Master Victuallers, who yesterday drove cattle and sheep from the lairages in Cabra to their slaughter-house, purchased at the Cattle Market on Wednesday about 500 cattle and 2,000 sheep and lambs for their week-end requirements.

Confused Policy In Germany

Reuter's Special Correspondent in Berlin states:—

Allied policy in post-war Germany is at the crossroads. The first 48 hours of joint occupation of Berlin by forces of all four major allies indicate that major decisions on fraternisation, political administration, propaganda, newspapers, films and radio, food supplies and transport cannot long be delayed.

Troops of the major Western Allies are seeing for themselves how vast are the differences between the administration of the Red Army and that of the British and American authorities.

Red Army soldiers, obviously on friendly terms with German civilians, frequent cinemas, variety shows and concert halls with the Germans. Night clubs, and even cabarets carry on a vigorous night life in several of the capital's best-known thoroughfares.

The Red Army authorities are clearly doing all they can to restore trades unions and other working-class organisations, not only in Berlin, but throughout the half of Germany now under Soviet control.

The Russians administer the Berlin radio station and four famous orchestras, including the Philharmonic and the Opera House Orchestra. Giant placards setting out the policy towards Germans, as outlined in Marshal Stalin's speeches, flank the roads throughout the zones of the Western Allies.

The Russians are making it quite clear that their aims are the complete elimination of the Nazis, on the one hand, and unlimited co-operation with the Germans, even to the re-establishment of the Left Wing political parties and organisations, on the other.

British officers in Berlin stated yesterday that the situation was "confused," and that the lines of general policy were not yet laid down. There is still no indication that the British and American policy towards the Germans in the capital will be other than strict enforcement of the non-fraternisation principle. These problems can only be decided at the "Big Three" conference.

The Governments of three old German States have been completely restored by Marshal Zhukov, Russian Commissioner in Occupied Germany. They are Brandenburg (Berlin's home province and the original core of Prussia), Mecklenburg, on the Baltic coast, and Saxony. Leading members of the Social Democratic and Communist parties, which Hitler outlawed, have been appointed to govern the three provinces.

Woman's Body Found On Road

Last night, some time between nine and eleven o'clock, the body of a woman was found lying on the road at Ballinafid, about three miles from Mullingar.

It is believed that she had been struck by a car which did not stop.

John Higgins (5), of Lower Sean MacDermott street, Dublin, was drowned in the Royal Canal, at Newcomen Bridge, yesterday afternoon. The body was recovered shortly afterwards.

Irish Assets in Britain May Be Written Down 50 Per Cent

—DEPUTY McGILLIGAN

WHEN An Taoiseach, Mr. de Valera, in the Dail yesterday, introduced an estimate of £11,370 for his Department, Mr. P. McGilligan (F.G.) said that business people generally were beginning to get very anxious about the situation that had developed here; that, as a result of the war, we had piled up sterling assets to an enormous extent, but that it was fairly clear, from the statements of British economists, that we were not going to be permitted to liquidate those immediately.

Mr. McGilligan said he thought it was quite possible that these assets would be written down by about 50 per cent., and that for every £1 we had we would be lucky to get 10/- worth of goods, and only such goods as England cared to supply.

A possible British attitude after this general election, Mr. McGilligan said, would be that they would draw a line and say: "We owe you so much money. We will fund that, and we will pay it over a period of years in such goods as we can supply, at a rate of exchange we think proper."

Continuing, Mr. McGilligan stated that we were in the position that we had made a forced loan of £150 millions to Britain. Notwithstanding that we had such credits in Britain, we had gone on supplying British people with goods on tick when they had said to us: "We can't pay you when you want to be paid. We will pay you in our own time and in the way we want to." Despite all that, they had decided to continue exports. They might get goods, but they would be at prices which Britain would determine.

The British might flood us with things like sewing machines and luxury clothing, while the country was starving for capital goods.

The Minister for Finance, Mr. McGilligan stated, was unable to say what revenue was expected from tourists, despite the fact that an expensive Tourist Board had been set up, with offices in London and the North, parading the joys of life in Eire.

The deputy said he hoped that the Tourist Board would prove to be as highly inefficient as it had shown itself to be up to the present. If it did, it would mean that thousands of people with a purchasing power of from £3 to £5 million a year would come in here to eat up our food on credit, while we could get nothing from Britain in return.

PURCHASING POWER

Referring to the stabilisation of the cost-of-living bonus for civil servants, Mr. McGilligan said he had never heard it defended on moral grounds. Suppose they kept our tourists, and, instead, gave a million to the civil servants and the teachers, would it not be better than to allow visitors to eat our food on tick and to spend paper money which they would not be allowed to spend at home?

Our citizens in Britain, Mr. McGilligan declared, were sending home £13 millions to add to the amount of purchasing power. We had exported 170,000 people in the last four years, and we were continuing to export them at the rate of 100 per day.

"We will soon reach the stage of the tramp who was found dead from starvation in Kerry a couple of years ago, but who had hundreds of pounds sewn in his pockets," Mr. McGilligan stated.

General R. MULCAHY (F.G.) said earlier that he felt the Taoiseach should have addressed himself to the general state of affairs in regard to the economic well-being of the people.

The United States and Great Britain Governments were doing everything in their power to try to raise the standard of living of their peoples, but it seemed to him from the speeches of the Fianna Fail Ministers that the policy which the Government here maintained from 1932 to 1939 would be continued. In Great Britain the future agricultural policy had been fully reviewed; here our agricultural community had had no such assistance offered to them. Admittedly they had plans for drainage, building and road development, but surely it was obvious that any considerable expenditure on such schemes, without a very substantial increase in the production of consumer goods, was going to create an extraordinarily inflationary state here. If they were to look for hope to anything the Government was doing or saying then he saw nothing but hopelessness facing the people.

Mr. MacENTEE, Minister for Local Government and Public Health, said that the whole tenor of Deputy McGilligan's speech was that sterling was of no value, and that our trade with Britain was a complete disaster, and that our people should live in a state of complete isolation, taking nothing from Britain, not even her money.

Mr. McGilligan's speech that sterling was of no value, or that their trade with Britain was of no value, was a complete reversal of the policy of Fine Gael for the past 20 years.

During the past 6 years experience showed how far the policy of the Government succeeded in giving the country an alternative to dependence on the livestock trade in the British market. "We suffered far less privation during the war even than people far more removed from it," the Minister stated. It was because they had not interfered more than was absolutely necessary with the traditional economy of the country during the period of the emergency that the sterling assets had accumulated in the measure with which they were all familiar. "When, during the economic war, Great Britain interfered with the free disposal of that national increase, and we had to take measures to dispose otherwise of our surplus, Deputy McGilligan and those associated with him, embarked upon a course of action in the House and in the country which brought us to the verge of civil war, and the battle cry against Fianna Fail then was that we were 'slaughtering the calves.'

"We still have calves to dispose of," Mr. MacEntee declared, "and we still have stores and yearlings, and we will continue to have them so long as livestock remains the primary industry of this country. Does Deputy McGilligan want us to slaughter the calves again or to sell them for whatever they will fetch in whatever market is available?"

The Minister stated that at present there was no possibility of getting goods in exchange.

The House adjourned until 10.30 a.m. to-day.

"Dictatorship" Denied by Taoiseach In Dail

DR. T. F. O'HIGGINS, speaking on the Emergency Powers (Continuance and Amendment) Bill in the Dail yesterday, said that of all the legislation ever passed through the Dail in its 23 years of history—Public Safety Acts, Flogging Bills and Execution Bills—there never was an Act enacted that claimed to interfere more with the ordinary normal constitutional rights of the people than this particular Act.

Mr. de VALERA, in the course of his reply described as misrepresentation the statement that the measure was introduced to give the Government powers to intern. He also denied that he was a dictator, and said that any powers he had got were the result of successive elections.

Mr. M. J. DONNELLAN (Farmers), said that government at the moment was not by Dail Eireann, but by Ministerial order. If this Bill was passed it would be the end of democratic government, and he asked the Taoiseach to withdraw it.

General R. MULCAHY (F.G.) said that the Taoiseach had introduced into his speech a reference to the I.R.A., and said that it was such a menace—such a present-day menace—that persons who had been released comparatively recently had now to be re-arrested. He would like to know whether the Taoiseach wanted to maintain powers under the Emergency Act to deal with any menace by the I.R.A. or any other subversive organisation in this country, or whether menaces of that particular kind could be regarded as extra to the emergency and would be dealt with in future by the ordinary legislation of the land.

"I understood that that was the intention from what he said last night," said General Mulcahy, "and that he was going to arm himself under the ordinary legislation of the land. In my opinion, there could not possibly be any difficulties inside the country that could not be dealt with by the very adequate Statutes that we have as the law of the land."

UNLIMITED POWERS

He said that if the Act were passed in its present form the Government would have power to do anything they wished, with the exception of powers over censorship, powers over taxation without leave of Parliament. That was complete power to do anything they wanted to do in the country, and that being so, he proposed to help to get Parliament clear on what the situation was by moving in Committee that any reference to the securing of public safety be deleted from Section 2, because he thought that under our present circumstances the Government had adequate powers to secure the public safety by the proper and efficient administration of the ordinary law. He also proposed to have the section dealing with the preservation of the State and the one dealing with public order deleted on the same grounds.

Mr. MICHAEL MORAN (F.F.) said he believed that untold harm might be done to them internationally through the abolition of Press censorship. It was obvious that their position and their attitude here was being misrepresented abroad, and might be further misrepresented. Censorship had been very necessary for their people and he regretted very much that the Government had not retained it for at least another twelve months.

Dr. T. F. O'Higgins (F.G.) asked: When was the time selected to introduce an Act of that magnitude, by an individual who nearly lifted the roof of that building when it was proposed by law, and with the sanction of Parliament, to intern people on suspicion without trial? That was the attitude of Deputy de Valera when he sat over in the Opposition benches; that was his championship then of the democratic rights of the people; that was his conception then of what real pure democracy meant. His conception now was that the eleventh hour of the life of the parliamentary year—in the middle of July, when the urgent cause of feeding people inside and outside this country should be demanding the time and the energy and attention of any of the deputies associated with production—was the time to introduce a bill of this nature.

Now they had reached a point where, so far as the Western Hemisphere was concerned, the war was over, and there was no militant action anywhere in the western world. But the political junta that constituted the Executive Council of this State, anxious to cling on to powers, anxious to be able to favour or victimise, wanted to hold in their grasp, independent of Parliament and independent of people, powers that would only be given in the face of most imminent and appalling disaster—and no case was made for it. Did the Taoiseach not remember that when that Dail had faced internal danger of the most calamitous kind, the most tragic civil war in the history of any country — when the mantle of his party was thrown over every one of its activities—constitutional rights were left Yet, because three-quarters of the world suffered from a disaster and a tragedy that never even singed us, we here, for political purposes, stimulated purely with power-greed and bolstered up by a regimented and docile majority, want to keep that stranglehold on our people, and to do it by cheap bleatings about democracy and hints about internal danger.

Replying to the debate, Mr. DE VALERA said that when he had introduced this bill in 1939 he indicated it was the intention of the Government to get rid of these powers as quickly as possible when the war ended. It was now necessary, because the emergency was not over, to retain some of these powers. Deputy Dillon came into the House, and, although he had legal qualifications, he asked what powers were left to the Government in this amending bill. Deputy Costello came into the House in such a hurry that he did not have time to read the bill, and he gave an interpretation of what was done which was completely wrong.

When Deputy Costello said that in Section 2 (1) the Government had powers to do anything he was inaccurate, as in the original Act there were a number of restrictions. It was conveniently forgotten that any Order made there by the Government could be annulled by the Dail.

It was only two months since the war in Europe ended, yet they had send instructions to the Departments to see what particular Orders could be got rid of, and to discover what powers it would be necessary to retain. A very large number of Orders had been wined out, and the examination was still going on. Censorship in all its forms had been removed, and if there was any censorship in future it would be imposed by the editors.

One of the misrepresentations of the measure was that they were introducing it to give them powers of internment, but his statement was quite to the contrary effect. He had pointed out that they would have, by proclamation, to bring in Part 2 of the Offences Against the State Act. That was simply in order to be frank with the House. Because he had been frank the whole debate had been turned around as if he were bringing in this bill for the purpose of securing the right of internment. That was a complete reversal of the facts. The moment the bill went through the powers of internment and arrest without warrant would disappear.

MURDERS AND TRIALS

Since the emergency started there were a number of murders of police officers, and there were, in addition, men tried, found guilty and executed. Did they want a situation like that to begin again? If the position at the moment was right should they not do everything in their power to keep it right? Should they allow young people to be inveigled or enticed into an organisation where they would be under the control of people they very often did not know, who would determine them whether they were to take other people's lives or endanger their own, or were they going to give them warning and prevent the people who were apparently determined to do that? Every one of the internees were released shortly after the war ending.

"We would be very glad indeed if this thing completely ends," said Mr. de Valera, "but if there is a danger of the whole thing starting again and we are going to have further murders and following that murder trials and executions, should we allow the people who are out to do that to do so? That is only incidental to this particular matter and need not have come up for discussion at this stage."

Mr. DILLON (intervening) said that the 1939 Act, which gave rise to all the anxiety, provided that the illustrative clauses mentioned by the Taoiseach were without prejudice to the general character of the measure, and although cancelling them, the Taoiseach was allowing the full effect of the Act to remain.

Mr. DE VALERA said that the Act Act gave them the general powers, except where they legislated to the contrary. They were legislating to deprive themselves of the power of minimum fines, censorship, and detention and arrest without warrant of natural-born Irish citizens under the Emergency Powers. This was equivalent to a positive prevention. The generality of the powers were limited by the positive legislation. It was too soon to know exactly what powers were essential to deal with the rest of the emergency, or what powers were necessary to deal with the possibility of a black market, to get the compulsory tillage programme through, and to see that we would have turf.

NO DICTATORSHIP

It was not unreasonable that these powers should be continued for a year for the Dail had power to annul any order. According to the Opposition, it was not democracy if the majority happened to be of that way of thinking. It was only democracy when the majority happened to be the other way round.

"The most extraordinary thing appears to me the pretence that we have a dictatorship," said Mr. de Valera. "You have a democracy working here. There is probably no State in the world which had so many general elections. It is suggested that I, personally, am a dictator; but any power I have got is as a result of successive elections — on an average, one every two years for the past 13 years. This talk about dictatorship is just a ridiculous pretence that imposes on nobody in this country, and only imposes on those in other countries who do not know what the conditions here are."

On a division, the bill received a second reading by 59 votes to 32.

Wireless Operator Larry Slattery, R.A.F., from Thurles, Co. Tipperary, the first registered prisoner-of-war with the Red Cross, was captured when his plane was shot down in the first raid on Germany in September, 1939. Alderman Byrne Suspended in The Dail

He was speaking on the Committee stage of the Local Authorities (Acceptance of Gifts) Bill, 1945, and said that the people were not allowed to use the Vincent estate, in Killarney, and this was contrary to the terms of the bequest.

Mr. S. MacENTEE, Minister for Local Government, said he objected to the implication in the deputy's statement. The bequest had been considered by a committee of the House, and a Statute was passed governing it.

Alderman BYRNE said he was entitled to speak and raise the matter on this bill.

The SPEAKER said that Alderman Byrne could not discuss a matter now governed by Statute.

Alderman BYRNE continued to speak, and the SPEAKER said that the deputy would have to resume his seat.

Alderman BYRNE—I respectfully protest. Every time this particular Minister is involved you rule in his favour.

The SPEAKER—You will leave the House.

Alderman BYRNE—I will wait for my suspension to be moved. This is political party prejudice.

On the motion of Mr. MacENTEE, Alderman Byrne was suspended, and withdrew repeating that it was "political party prejudice."

The bill was passed in all its stages.

Royal Visit To Northern Ireland

The King and Queen and Her Royal Highness Princess Elizabeth will pay a two-days' visit to Northern Ireland on Wednesday and Thursday, July 18th and 19th. The Royal Party will arrive in Belfast by sea on the morning of the 18th and will visit Londonderry on the following day.

Their Majesties and the Princess will return to England on the evening of July 19th. During their stay the Royal visitors will be the guests of their Graces the Duke and Duchess of Abercorn at Government House.

Dublin Bacon Quota

Bacon supplies in Dublin may improve considerably next week, it was stated after a conference which took place yesterday between the Chairman of the Pigs and Bacon Commission and Mr. A. C. McLoughlin, General Secretary, Irish Retail Traders' Protective Association. The conference was called to consider the recent reduction of the bacon quota outside the city to 33½ per cent.

Fresh Outbreak By Canadian Military

Canadian soldiers ran riot at Aldershot again last night and did even more damage than on Wednesday evening. They surged through the town for more than two hours and after a Canadian officer had appealed to them in vain to return to barracks, two fire engines, with bells clanging, were driven through the town in the hope of clearing the streets.

The officer, who addressed a large crowd of the men outside the police station told them, "Canadians are getting their fair share of the boats, but the shipping position is very difficult."

A party of the men entered a brewery store and were helping themselves to beer and spirits when a Canadian military policeman hit one of them over the head with a bottle. He ran out of the building, his face streaming with blood and the others followed him into the street.

By 12.30 a.m. nearly all the men had returned to barracks.

A military court of inquiry has been ordered to investigate the disturbances

One Man Acquitted In P.O.W. Murder Case

Hans Klein one of the eight German P.O.W. accused of the murder of a fellow prisoner, Wolfgang Rosterg, at a camp at Comrie, Scotland, was found not guilty when the British Military Court sat for the fourth day in London yesterday.

There were some startling answers in the cross-examination of Kurt Zuehlsdorff, the first of the accused to give evidence yesterday. Zuehlsdorff, a 20-year-old S.S. Panzer Grenadier and a grocers' assistant in civil life, told the court:—"I have suffered from betrayal by Rosterg, either by him or his friends. I was very excited and disgusted with this man." He said he thought Rosterg was a traitor and deserved death, and that he was prepared himself to carry out that sentence and kill him. He stated also that he gripped Rosterg under the arms and lifted him, but did not kick him on the ground or pull the rope.

The Court adjourned until to-day. It is unlikely that the proceedings will end this week.

Atlantic Air Services Extended

Additional air services from the United States are provided for in an authorisation given by the Civil Aeronautics Board to three United States airlines to operate routes across the North Atlantic. Formerly only one American line (Pan-American Airways) had permanent authority for flying the North Atlantic service. In addition to Pan-American, the two other lines given permission to fly the route are American Export Lines and Transcontinental and Western, Inc.

The authorisation will provide additional services to Portugal, Spain, Eire, the United Kingdom, Scandinavia, Russia and to North Africa, the Near East and India.—(Reuter.)

Sunday Opening Of Belfast Halls

The Recorder of Belfast yesterday upheld appeals on behalf of St. Mary's Hall and the Holy Cross Hall, Ardoyne, Belfast, and granted them permission to hold entertainments on Sundays between 8 p.m. and 11 p.m., stipulating that boxing should not be allowed.

The appeals were made against the decisions of the Belfast Police Committee, who refused to grant seven-day licences. At the opening of the appeals his honour allowed a number of objectors to be added as respondents.

Poulaphouca Turbine Due On Monday

The final turbine needed for the completion of the hydro-electric scheme at Poulaphouca is expected to arrive at the North Wall, Dublin, on Monday.

It is hoped that it will be unloaded on Monday, and conveyed by road to the site at Poulaphouca. Owing to its size and weight this will be a troublesome job.

Plea For Unity at T.U. Congress

THE split in the Labour movement, and a hope for the return to the ranks of an united organisation of the dissentient leaders, were discussed at yesterday's session of the Irish Trades Union Congress in the Mansion House, Dublin.

Mr. W. Norton, T.D., said that the split in the Congress, following the rift in the Labour Party, was probably one of the greatest tragedies that the Labour movement had ever witnessed.

A resolution moved by Belfast and District Trades Union Council was passed calling on all trade unionists in Ireland to resist any attempt to weaken the strength of the Congress.

MISSING FRIENDS

Miss L. Bennett said that she deplored the split as a real tragedy. They missed, she said, many friends to-day whom they would like to see among them. The time had come to put recriminations and bitterness behind them.

Miss Bennett suggested a revision of the constitution of the Congress, based on the inalienable principle of freedom of association and the unity of the Irish nation. The Council of the Irish Unions had asked them to barter the principle of freedom of workers' association.

Mr. R. Anthony, T.D., supporting Miss Bennett's suggestion, said that the Congress should be superior to any differences that might have arisen between Messrs. Larkin and O'Brien. Those men had given good service to the Labour movement in the past, and he hoped they would continue to do so in the future.

Mr. J. T. O'Farrell (Railway Clerks' Association) said that he did not think that Miss Bennett's suggestion would have the slightest effect on those who were determined to partition the trade union movement, as they had partitioned the Irish Labour Party.

Mr. Norton said that the allegations that the labour movement was dominated by the amalgamated organisations was based upon hypocrisy and chicanery.

Referring to partition, Mr. Norton stated that a solution would come only when they had a Labour Government in the North, South and in London. The Government, through Mr. Lemass, had expressed grave concern in regard to the dispute in the meat trade. That, said Mr. Norton, was a portent of what the workers might be compelled to face in the future.

REALITY

Referring to the manifesto of the Congress of Irish Unions, Mr. Norton said that, while there was a considerable amount of "rameis" in it, there was some reality in it as well. The highlight of the circular was when this so-called organisation said that it desired discussion, and, if possible, agreement, which should be done with the completeness, frankness and friendliness that the importance of the matter demanded. It was a great pity, he said, that these high ideals were not known before steps were taken to satisfy the hatred and vanity of certain men. These people should get back into the movement in which they had once taken so much pride, and advance the claims of the workers without dictation from the Government, or the approbation of the employing classes.

On the motion of Mr. O'Farrell, Congress expressed its strong dissatisfaction with the position of price control of essential commodities, and demanding that the Orders should be amended, so as to enable wage increases in the emergency to be more fairly adjusted with definite reference to the abnormal rise in the cost of living.

Mr. J. Larkin, T.D., said that it was true that three years ago they might have found unity of purpose and determination in leadership, which would have radically changed the position now facing them. It was remarkable that one of the groups mainly responsible for ham-stringing and destroying the hope had now the audacity to boast in a circular that its record over the past two years entitled it to the support of the workers. The Irish Trades Union Congress had gained one advantage—they were rid of the "old men of the sea," and it had the position of devising the ways and means of dealing with the problems that now faced the workers.

HOLIDAYS

Speaking on a resolution moved by Mr. C. Connolly (Cork), and which was passed, demanding two weeks' holidays, with pay, Councillor Larkin referred to the lock-out in the butchering trade, and said that women were responsible for all the worries of the workers in the distributive trade. Why could women not do their shopping at a reasonable hour, instead of charging (Continued in Page 2, Column 8.)

POLLING DAY IN BRITAIN AND NORTH

THE bulk of Britain's voters went to thousands of polling booths yesterday to elect the 38th Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, but they will have to wait three weeks to know the result of the first general election for nearly 10 years.

The delay was imposed to enable the votes of men and women in the services—in Germany and in Burma and all the other parts of the world where Britons in uniform are engaged—to be counted.

Because of local circumstances, polling in 23 divisions will take place later, and in Central Hull the election is deferred because of the death during the campaign of the Labour candidate. In three other constituencies there is no contest, so that, including the universities, 613 seats contested by some 1,600 candidates, were at stake yesterday.

Most of the British personnel in Germany have voted already either by proxy or by post.

Electors in Northern Ireland went to the polls in eight divisions to elect eleven members. In most areas polling started slowly, but in the afternoon interest increased, and in the evening there was the usual last-minute rush.

The candidates were well supplied with transport facilities, fleets of cars being augmented by brakes, open carriages, and even delivery vans.

The State opening of Parliament by the King will take place on Wednesday, August 8th, instead of August 7th, so as to allow a clear day between the August bank holiday and the opening.

Election Address Oversight

The omission of the name and address of the printers from an election address for Professor D. L. Savory, the Unionist candidate at Queen's University, Belfast, was held by the Northern Ireland High Court yesterday to have been an oversight by pure inadvertence.

Professor Savory and the Belfast News Letter, Ltd., who had printed the address, asked for an order allowing that the omission might be made an exception from the provisions of the Corrupt and Illegal Practices Prevention Act, 1883, on the ground that the omission arose from inadvertence, and not from any want of good faith.

Mr. Belford, who represented Mr. Thomas Cusack, the Independent candidate at the University, said that his client did not oppose the application.

Mr. Justice Black, giving judgment, said the Court had decided that the address was not a document to which the section of the Act applied, and, accordingly, no order would be necessary. If they had considered that the address fell within the class of document mentioned in the Act they would have had no hesitation in granting the relief sought. It was abundantly clear that the omission arose entirely from an oversight by pure inadvertence.

Morgenthau Resigns

The resignation of a second member of the U.S. Cabinet in just over a week was announced by President Truman in Washington last night. Mr. Henry Morgenthau, Secretary of the Treasury since 1934, and architect of the Roosevelt Government's financial policy, is the latest to go. It was only last week that Mr. Stettinius resigned as Secretary of State, and was succeeded by Mr. James Byrnes. The President said he would appoint Morgenthau's successor when he returns from the "Big Three" meeting, expected to take place within the next three weeks.—(Reuter.)

FOUGHT RHEUMATISM FOR MANY YEARS

Kruschen Quickly Relieved the Pain

Feels Quite Fit at 71

Not everyone who suffers from rheumatism will be so fortunate as to obtain relief after only a few doses of Kruschen. But Mr. F. W. did, as he tells in his letter. Kruschen will not fail to help you, too, if you follow his advice:—

"I suffered from rheumatism and lumbago for many years, and was recommended by a friend to try Kruschen. I have taken the Salts for a number of years, and the first few doses I found I obtained relief. I am 72 next year, and feel quite fit. After getting very wet about a fortnight ago, I got a slight return of pain in my right shoulder, but after my usual dose the next day I was quite free again. I find that an egg-spoonful in hot water each morning for breakfast has the best effect in my case. I have recommended it to my friends."—F. W.

Rheumatism has one primary cause—Uric Acid in the joints and muscles. Ordinary aperient salts which act on the bowels only, can't drive out this acid. There is only one way to drive uric acid out of your body, and that is to flush it away through your kidneys.

The whole secret of Kruschen is in its double action. It acts upon the kidneys and upon the bowels at the same time, driving out the uric acid deposits wherever they collect, and preventing them from forming again. Every chemist sells Kruschen Salts, price 1/9 per bottle.

Easy Champion Plate Win For Ekyad

IN brilliant sunshine, a small crowd watched Sir Percy Loraine's Ekyad win the Champion Plate very easily at the Curragh yesterday. He started a well-backed second favourite.

A dozen colts and fillies went to the post, and from the start Drybob, stable companion to the favourite, Good Days, settled down in front of Avoca, Ford Transport, Head Dress, Good Days, Torch and Ruby Port. It was a good gallop. At half-way, Drybob was still leading from Avoca, with Ford Transport and Good Days racing alongside each other. When they emerged from behind the rise, Drybob was only just ahead of his stable mate. Avoca and Ford Transport were on their heels, and Ekyad, full of running, was rapidly improving his position. Good Days and Drybob swung into the straight shoulder to shoulder, and soon afterwards the former drew to the front. Then Ekyad closed with him, and obviously the race rested between the two of them, for Moylan, on Avoca, and Eddery, on Ford Transport, were riding desperately.

Ekyad, it seemed, had something in hand, and, when Quirke set him going below the distance, he began to draw away from Good Days. He was a clear 1½ lengths in front when he appeared to veer across Good Days, but the latter was a well-beaten horse at the time, and it certainly made no difference to the result. Ekyad was going right away at the finish, and he passed the post a worthy and very easy winner by three lengths. In the last stride Ford Transport ran Avoca out of third place. He was a length behind Good Days.

The hard luck story of the race comes from Ford Transport. Eddery, who rode him, broke a stirrup-leather in the first three furlongs, and so he rode the greater part of the race with only one iron. In the circumstances, he decided advantage where the idea of the opposing batsmen must be to endeavour to wear down the bowling. Fielding all through the side is of a high standard.

Phoenix do not impress so much in batting ability as Pembroke, but they have a few men who, given favourable conditions and a reasonable amount of luck, could rattle the opposition. Their bowling is not by any means outstanding either, if one excepts J. C. Boucher, in fact, it is in Boucher's form that their greatest hope of victory lies At his best, he is quite capable of upsetting the normal even tenor of the Pembroke batting, and instituting a procession to the pavilion by the visitors. If he is in top form Pembroke will surely have to fight hard for their runs.

As always in cricket, where time is of no importance, a quite disproportionate value is lent to winning the toss. On a favourable wicket the side batting first can usually compile, by slow and painstaking methods, a total which the opposition, on a wicket which may have deteriorated greatly; under the necessity of breaking the tempo of their game over several evenings' play; and subdued by the psychological effect of facing a large score, can hardly hope to exceed.

If Pembroke win the toss, and bat first on a kindly wicket, few will give Phoenix much of a chance; if the matter is in the reverse, the challengers may possibly overcome the favourites.

Play will start at 2.30. The tea interval will be at 5.30, and stumps will be drawn at 8.30. Should the game be unfinished on Saturday, it will be continued on Monday and, if necessary, on each subsequent evening, starting at 6.15 and ending at 9.0.

HIGH JUMP WILL BE HIGHLIGHT

The highlight of the inter-association athletics contest between the A.A.U.E. and the N.I.A.A.A. at College Park to-morrow is likely to be the meeting once again of Prince A. Adedoyin (Queen's University) and R. O'Rafferty (Donore) in the high jump. Adedoyin has had the best of matters between them up to the present, but O'Rafferty has not been up to his best form of late, and it is quite possible that he will turn the tables this time. Whatever the result, their further meeting should prove most interesting.

A tight contest is expected from the inter-association aspect, and it is quite possible that the issue may depend upon the result of the relay. Taken all round, however, the A.A.U. team appears a little the better balanced, and this quality may just see it home in a competition which may produce outstanding figures in many events.

The teams are as follows:—

100 Yds.—R. C. Jephson, J. C. Conway, H. Booker (A.A.U.E.), J. McInerney, R. Fleming, J. A. Wilde (N.I.). 220 Yds.—R. C. Jephson, J. P. Riordan, L. GOOD RISE IN G.N.R. DEB.

PUBLIC interest was on a still broader scale on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday, and markets were busier than for some time past. Interest was widespread, and a cheerful tone was evident.

Home Government Funds were mainly buyers, and prices went ahead. Banks continued in favour. The feature of the Transport group was the buying of Gt. Northern Deb., up to 90, an advance of 1½ points on the last quotation.

J. G. Mooney Ord. soared a further 2/6 to 85/-. Cement Ord., on profit-taking, shaded off to 52/- in a small way. Millar and Beatty Pref. moved up to 86/6, but Yam Seng Rubbers ceased the turn to 1/10½.

Among British Industrials, Gt Universal Stores were still prominent. Textiles were busy, but prices inclined to shade off.
